THE Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall paid a visit to Alexandra Palace on Friday to take in the sights at The Edible Garden Show.

The royal couple are pictured above above meeting schoolchildren who had been challenged to design an edible garden and were also presented with a mini wheelbarrow, a watering can and a grow-your-own kit to pass on to their grandson, Prince George.

Prince visits Palace show

The show, which has moved to London from the Midlands, featured former Blue Peter gardener Chris Collins, botanist and award-winning gardener James Wong and author Pippa Greenwood.

"Being able to welcome the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall has been an unbelievable honour," said the show's PR director Paul Smith.

"We know the royal couple share our great passion for grow your own and we just hope we've done our bit to encourage little Prince George to become the next generation of green-fingered royals."

THE jury in the trial of a man accused of murdering PC Keith Blakelock this week heard police radio messages from the time of the officer's fatal stabbing.

One harrowing message said that the officer had "a knife in the back of his head".

PC Blakelock was killed during the Broadwater Farm riot in Tottenham in 1985.

Nicky Jacobs, 45, of Hackney, east London, is on trial at the Old Bailey accused of his murder – a charge which he denies

On Monday, the court was told that PC Blakelock was retreating with colleagues and firefighters, whom police officers had been trying to protect as they put out a blaze at a supermarket when the group was attacked by rioters. Having initially contained the situation, members of the emergency services were forced to retreat after being attacked by up to 100 people armed with "knives and machetes".

The messages relayed the confusion as officers called for "urgent assistance" for their injured colleague. In one message, an officer is heard saying: "We have a PC who I think is dead, can we get an ambulance?"

The court has previously heard that PC Blakelock was stabbed more than 40 times and had a knife embedded into his neck. He was also attacked with a machete.

The trial continues.

Globe stage is set for Nakay

A STUDENT from Wood Green is one of a select number who have been chosen to perform on stage at Shakespeare's Globe Theatre in London as part of the Sam Wanamaker Festival.

Nakay Kpaka, a third-year student at Drama Centre London, is joining 41 other student actors from the UK's top drama schools for a weekend of training before a final performance on Sunday afternoon.

Nakay and fellow student James Hardy will represent their drama school in a scene from Othello.

The performance will be the culmination of workshops and masterclasses aimed at helping the students to explore their craft.

"I'm as equally excited as I am astonished that I'm taking part in the festival," said Nakay.

"Coming from the background that I'm from, which is quite a rough one, I never imagined that I'd be given the chance to stand on one of the most famous stages in the world – speaking verse.

"To say I'm beside myself would be an understatement."

The festival is a springboard for aspiring actors. Naem Hayat, who took part last year, is about to embark on the Globe's worldwide tour of Hamlet, in the title role.

Other past participants include BAFTA-nominated Andrew Garfield, from The Social Network and The Amazing Spiderman, David Oakes, who has starred in TV dramas The Borgias and The White Queen and Michelle Dockery, best known as Lady Mary Crawley in Downton Abbey.

The festival reflects the work of the Globe's founder, Sam Wanamaker, whose mission was to turn the theatre on the South Bank into a training ground for scholars and actors.

Councillors face voting claims on planning proposals

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A PLANNING chief has hit out against allegations that block party decisions in committee meetings is a sign of forbidden "whipped" voting on controversial development plans.

In a question submitted by planning committee member Lee Chamberlain, councillor for Bush Hill Park ward, before tonight's meeting of the full council at the Civic Centre in Silver Street, Enfield Town, he asked planning chairman Andreas Constantinides to provide a detailed breakdown of voting records for every planning decision taken in 2013.

He said: "Given the pattern of voting in planning does suggest whipped voting by the Labour side, will you publish for the record the voting pattern for all non-unanimous planning meeting approvals in 2013."

Whipped voting means that councillors are told they have to vote the way their party wants them to. However, council regulations forbid anyone from telling councillors on a planning committee how to vote.

Refuting that any Labour member of the committee was ever told how to vote, Mr Constantinides replied: "Members are regularly reminded that whipping is not appropriate within the committee and I don't believe there is evidence to suggest that this takes place."

Addressing the fact that Labour councillors often vote as a block on contentious planning applications including the Cat Hill development, Ladderswood regeneration and Bowes Road flats, he added: "Legal advice has confirmed that members of one party voting together for an application does not in itself constitute whipping."

According to the voting breakdown provided in council papers, councillors were split along party lines, with no abstentions, on nine occasions out of 62 in 2013.

However, Kim Coleman, leader of the Cat Hill campaign group, said she was frustrated when the application to build 231 homes on the site of the former Middlesex University Campus in Cockfosters was voted through in March 2013 after Labour councillors voted together to pass the development.

"On the night of the Cat Hill vote, some of the councillors were asking questions that were actually answered in the officers' report," she told the Advertiser, adding that many residents were frustrated with Labour's block voting.

Eight Labour councillors voted in favour of the development as opposed to the five Conservatives who opposed it. One Labour councillor was absent from the vote and one Tory withdrew.

Frustrated: Kim Coleman

Development delegation quizzed on three-day Riviera jolly

DEVELOPMENT bosses have been quizzed by councillors on what they achieved for the borough by spending three days at a conference on the French Riviera.

A delegation from Enfield Council, including the cabinet member for regeneration, Del Goddard, travelled to the MIPIM conference in the luxury resort of Cannes in the south of France last month on a trip that was paid for by publishing company 3Fox International.

Mr Goddard was put on the spot by Conservative deputy leader Joanne Laban in a question submitted before tonight's full council meeting at Enfield Civic Centre in Silver Street.

She asked the regeneration tsar to spell out "what outcomes, if any, were achieved" by his attendance at the conference in Cannes.

Mr Goddard insisted that the conference was not about coming away with locked-down deals but about "very substantial networking in an informal setting".

He said that it "raises the profile of Enfield" as well as keeping the delegates up to date on current issues in the field of development and regeneration."

Mr Goddard added: "It establishes contact with a range of potential investors at a senior level through pre-arranged and informal meetings," which, he said, are then followed up in Enfield.

Bus struck former editor, inquest told

A FORMER editor of the Enfield Gazette died in a tragic accident after she ended up under a bus having been caught in the driver's blind spot, an inquest heard last week.

Hertfordshire Coroner's Court was told that mother-of-two Margaret Power, 60, from Potters Bar, died after being struck by a bus in Beehive Lane, near the Queen Elizabeth II Hospital, in Welwyn Garden City, at about 6.40pm on November 20, 2012.

On the dark and wet evening, Mrs Power, who edited the Gazette for a period in the 1980s and was working as a communications operator for Hertfordshire Police at the time of the tragedy, decided to cross Beehive Lane where a 301 bus had just pulled up.

The court heard that she crossed the road in front of the bus, unaware that it was about to pull away from the bus stop. Unseen by driver Linda Brown, Mrs Power was struck by the bus and ended up underneath the vehicle.

Reliving the collision, a tearful Mrs Brown told the court: "Before pulling out I looked around and did not see anybody and as I turned rightwards I heard a bang."

"I stopped the bus and got out and there was Mrs Power on the floor. I never saw her."

Asked about the vehicle's blind spot, she added: "Every vehicle has blind spots, but that bus is just bad – it's a bad design in my opinion."

Luke Sharman, who was waiting for a friend in a car in front of the bus, told the court that he saw the aftermath of the incident and that he jumped out of his vehicle before running over to the hospital to seek help.

Mrs Power was eventually taken from underneath the bus by firefighters and rushed to the nearby hospital, where resuscitation efforts were unable to save her.

She died just before 8pm.

Recording a verdict of accidental death due to "multiple traumatic injuries", coroner Edward Thomas concluded: "I don't think Margaret knew what was happening. She was struck in the back, causing her to fracture her pelvis which meant she bled – and she bled catastrophically."

Mrs Power is survived by her husband Gerald and two daughters.

In a statement, her family said: "We would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to those members of the public who came to Margaret's aid, as well as the firefighters, paramedics and medical staff who did everything they could."

"She will always be desperately missed, but we will always have happy memories of the times we shared, which we keep alive in our hearts always."

Schoolgirl's deportation held up for second time

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE schoolgirl threatened with deportation remains locked up in a detention centre alone after a second attempt to remove her from the UK failed on Sunday.

Airline staff again refused to deport 19-year-old Yashika Bageerathi, of Fox Lane, Palmers Green, to her native Mauritius.

She had been scheduled to be flown by British Airways to the island on Tuesday last week, but was turned away – and Air Mauritius staff took the same stance on Sunday, Mandie Campbell, director general of immigration enforcement told MPs of the Home Affairs Select Committee yesterday.

She remains at Yarl's Wood detention centre in Bedfordshire. "Yashika is worried, upset and frightened," said Zoe Thompson, deputy principal of the teenager's school, Oasis Academy Hadley, in South Street, Ponders End.

"Yarl's Wood is notorious and this weekend a woman was found dead in the cell next to her. On top of all that, she is kept apart from her family and kept in limbo."

On Saturday, students at the academy, where Yashika is still hoping to finish her A-levels in a month's time, rallied outside the Houses of Parliament in support of their schoolmate.

They had spent the previous day lobbying other authorities including Enfield Council.

Ms Thompson added: "Students are continuing to put pressure on ministers and urging people to sign the petition. They have done a tremendous job."

"We are hoping to get her released on bail so she can sit her exams."

Show of support: Oasis Academy Hadley students meet cabinet member for youth and Palmers Green councillor Bambos Charalambous last week

Lawyers acting on behalf of the Oasis Trust, which runs the academy are continuing to make legal representations so she can return to school and sit her A-levels.

Yashika has also received support from Enfield Southgate MP David Burrows.

The school said the family were scared of returning to Mauritius, from where they fled in 2011 to escape a violent, drug-dealing uncle.

Last Tuesday, Yashika's mother Sowbhagyawatee, 37, her younger brother Cherish, 11, and sister Shaivya, 16, were also told they face deportation after their asylum claims were rejected. They have not been detained.

An online petition calling on Home Secretary Theresa May to stop the deportation has so far attracted more than 174,000 signatures.

A spokesman for the Home Office added: "We consider every claim for asylum on its individual merits and in this case the applicant was not considered to be in need of protection."

"This case has gone through the proper legal process and our decision has been supported by the courts."

July 21 bomb plotter's appeal bid is delayed

A MAN jailed for his part in a botched bomb plot on London in July 2005 has had his appeal bid delayed.

Manfo Asiedu was jailed for his part in the 21/7 terror plot on the capital after pleading guilty at the end of his trial.

However, the 40-year-old is now appealing against his conviction, which saw him jailed for 33 years in 2007 after expert evidence used in the trial has been called into question.

Applying for leave to appeal, counsel acting on behalf of Asiedu presented a case in front of Sir Brian Leveson at the Royal Courts of Justice last Thursday calling on prosecutors to disclose specific notes used by explosives expert Dr Stuart Black in the original trial.

According to Stephen Kamlish QC, the doctor's original findings had in fact been called into question by scientists in the Forensics Explosives Laboratory before the trial.

Mr Kamlish told the court that Dr Black had admitted his findings were wrong and had agreed to conduct further tests in the molecular make-up of the flour and hydrogen peroxide mix that the four plotters had had in their rucksacks.

"He read his own data wrong," said Mr Kamlish.

He said that although Dr Black admitted the mistake to fellow scientists at meetings with the FEL and said he would do further tests, he did not make his initial misreading of the data clear to the jury.

"What he should have said was it was pointed out to me that I had made a mistake," added Mr Kamlish.

Back in court: Manfo Kwaku Asiedu

The defence allege that Dr Black knowingly perjured himself by presenting evidence he knew to be flawed as fact during the trial.

The application for leave to appeal has been adjourned until all testing notes Dr Black made at the time are given to prosecution counsel.

If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:

- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN.

Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist. The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

Campaigner makes a stand

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN environmental campaigner is "appalled" by the decision to allow Tottenham Hotspur FC to build a 500-seat stand on a green belt site near leafy woods in the north of the borough.

Jill Simpson, owner of the Village Wholefood Shop in Forty Hill, is furious that last week's meeting of Enfield Council's planning committee voted unanimously to allow Spurs to build the stand at their training ground off Whitewebbs Lane, Enfield.

The decision, which council officers had recommended for approval, was due to be made in February – but was postponed in order to give councillors a chance to visit the training facility near Archers Wood.

"Last night was not democracy," Ms Simpson told the Advertiser last Wednesday. "I was appalled, frustrated and saddened by the decision of the councillors."

"One councillor even praised the site as a good example of a 21st-century green belt site."

Ms Simpson had made a deputation to an earlier meeting on the issue, petitioning councillors to halt any new development on Enfield's green belt. She had also written to individual councillors on the committee in a last-itch bid to influence their decision.

She told the Advertiser she felt that her objections and those of other local residents, had been dismissed abruptly.

"Corporate interests have been put above residents' concerns," she said. "The reason for the green belt is to stop urban sprawl."

"I think we are all dependent on the natural world and we need to protect it."

But Andreas Constantinides, chairman of the planning committee said: "We always listen to residents, but at the end of the day we determine every application on planning principles."

"In fairness, if residents always got their way, there would not be any development whatsoever. The reality is that life sometimes presents us with things that we do not always like."

"We would have been a laughing stock if we had refused this – because they would have come back to us on appeal and they would have won that."

A spokesman for Spurs declined the opportunity to comment.

Sign is stare crazy

"DOGS must not stare at people eating", according to a sign spotted in a park in Enfield last week.

The poster instructing dogs in the strongest possible terms not to stare at people while they enjoy an alfresco lunch appeared on fencing outside the Roll-in-One cafe, in Beggars Hollow in Whitewebbs Country Park, on Monday, next to an authentic local authority sign.

Written in large letters on Enfield Council paper, it prompted bemused dog walker Michael Hughes to contact the Advertiser to ask: "Has Enfield Council finally lost the plot completely?"

The 74-year-old from Freezywater was walking his own dog through the park when he spotted the official-looking sign and immediately snapped the evidence.

"It caused a bit of laugh among all us dog walkers because like someone said, 'I'm sure our dogs would love to follow the advice - but unfortunately they can't read'."

When contacted by the Advertiser, the council denied all knowledge of the sign, insisting that it was someone's idea of an early April Fools' Day joke.

Cabinet member for the environment Chris Bond revealed that there had never been a council edict banning dogs from looking at park users munching their lunches - and there were currently no plans to introduce one in the future.

He told the Advertiser: "Someone's clearly having a laugh and this is obviously a hoax dreamed up by someone daft enough to get the date of April Fools' Day wrong."

Sewage still causing a stink

THAMES Water has been urged again to do all it can to reduce the smell emanating from its sewage treatment plant in Edmonton.

Residents staged a protest outside the Deephams plant in Picketts Lock Lane last Thursday in a bid to get the utility company to take the maximum possible action to reduce the pong as part of a planned £250million upgrade.

Standing outside the plant, Nesimi Erbil, who lives nearby in Nightingale Road, said the odour was particularly bad on warm days.

"Thames Water makes millions of pounds in profit each year, but needs to spend more on fixing the smell," he said. "It has got better over the last two years, but it really isn't enough."

During the first period of consultation on the improvements, which will involve replacing tanks and equipment at the site, campaigners submitted a 2,239-signature petition to Enfield Council in October last year calling for something to be done.

A second public consultation period ends on Tuesday.

Edmonton MP Andy Love joined the protesters and said: "Residents living near Deephams should be able to open their windows, particularly on warm days, without having their lives affected by smells coming from the sewage works."

"We need Thames Water to agree to upgrade the site to the highest level using all the latest technology so that the area is no longer blighted by unpleasant odours."

Thames Water said it was planning to spend £15m as part of the upgrade to control the smelliest parts of the works, covering equipment and tanks and installing measures which capture and clean odorous air.

While admitting the site will not be completely free of smell, Thames Water, claimed that the number of properties affected by the odour would be reduced by 94 per cent as a result of the upgrade.

A spokeswoman added: "Reducing odour is a key part of our plan to upgrade Deephams sewage works. We are in the middle of a public consultation on our proposals and urge people to get in touch and give us their feedback."

Thames Water is expected to apply for planning permission this summer.

Doug Taylor

Leader of Enfield Council

WHEN you elected Labour to run Enfield Council in 2010, we promised we would strive to create a fairer Enfield.

At a time when the cost of living has been soaring and the government has been focused on protecting only the privileged few, we have done everything we can to make the borough fairer.

I am proud we have frozen council tax every year despite unprecedented cuts in government funding. This is in stark contrast to the previous Conservative administration, which raised council tax in by 41 per cent in its period in office.

I am also proud we are making sure every penny counts. We have protected and improved front-line services such as road maintenance, street cleaning, recycling, libraries and parks.

Record levels of satisfaction with these services in the last residents' survey show that people have noticed the difference.

We continue to meet the challenges of an expanding population through investment in new housing and estate renewal and a multi-million-pound school expansion programme. We continue to repair and improve around 17 miles of pavements and roads every year. Our work to improve parks means we now have eight with green flag status. We have retained 17 libraries and refurbished leisure centres, the QE Stadium and historic Forty Hall. Significant progress has been made in improving the borough's longer term prosperity.

Do we always get it right? No, nobody ever does. But we work to ensure our decisions are aimed to make Enfield better and grounded in the best legal and financial advice available. We listen, learn and make sure we get better.

Cycling will never fully replace car ownership

IN response to David Hughes' letter "In support of a car ban" (Advertiser, February 26), it is a nonsense to say that car culture has made walkers and cyclists second-class citizens as many of them also own a car.

The reason cycling diminished was because more people preferred to travel in comfort in a car than get cold and wet riding a bike.

Cycling is a fair-weather occupation and is also a solitary activity, whereas a car enables families and groups to travel together more easily.

The continuing rise in car ownership proves the point.

I cannot believe pedestrians spend more than motorists. They are limited in what they can carry, whereas a car has a much greater capacity.

Traders are right to be concerned about the council's future road plans.

The increased enthusiasm for cycling seems to be encouraging the anti-car lobby, but let us not forget that the car is a popular asset to family life, plus motorists pay millions of pounds in tax and charges to the council and government to be on the road.

Cycling has a part to play, but it will never replace the car.

The population of the borough of Enfield is more than 300,000 and everybody seems to have a car, with very few cyclists evident.

Perhaps the council can provide the number?

It is about to embark on a £30million rearrangement of Enfield's roads to encourage more cycling. Let's hope that it will be money well spent.

Rescued hedgehog Furness to be released back into the wild

I WISH to thank the Advertiser for including the article about hedgehog Furness ("Retired vet is saving sanctuary animals", March 12).

Further to the article: Good news as Furness will be released in the next few weeks. This will be sad for all those who have got to know him.

The directors of Wildlife Rescue and Ambulance Service are Barry and June Smitherman, not Smith.

I am looking for a retired veterinary nurse or assistant to help me in the last clinic two or three mornings a week.

If there is someone out there wishing to volunteer for this very rewarding work, please call me on 020 8344 2785.

It would also be appropriate to recognise the private veterinary organisations that have been particularly helpful to us. They have given generously of their time and facilities so that we can do the best job for our patients.

Wildlife Rescue and Ambulance Service (Enfield) gives special thanks to: Medivet – Enfield.

Medivet – Hendon (particularly Richard Leonard, MRCVS).

The Park Veterinary Practice (Russ King MRCVS and his nurses).

Rescued: Vet John Gladstone and hedgehog Furness

Vet CT Specialists (Victoria Johnson MRCVS).

Abbey Veterinary Services (particularly Trevor Whitbread MRCVS).

Better option for treatment

THE urgent care centre at Chase Farm Hospital offers a service for non-life-threatening cases where patients can be seen in less than an hour. It opens from 9am and 9pm.

You can relieve pressure on doctors and nurses at North Middlesex and Barnet hospitals' accident and emergency departments by instead visiting the urgent care centre.

The choice is yours: Do you want to wait for up to five hours in A&E or receive treatment in less than an hour at Chase Farm?

When I visited the urgent care centre, I was seen within 20 minutes.

So I know which to use if I need treatment in the future. Do you?

Beware cheque scam loophole

I WOULD like to make other people aware of a scam.

I received two phone calls recently purporting to be from my bank.

The second referred to an "amount" that was due to leave my account that day, which set alarm bells ringing as this was not expected.

I went into my branch to check these calls and was very glad that I did.

When my account was brought up on the screen, with reference to the amount supposedly going out that day, I could see a copy of a cheque, with the correct name and account details, but not written by me.

It was soon realised it had come from the next chequebook I was due to receive but had been intercepted on the way – and the cheque was made out to a name I didn't know for £1,745.90.

The cheque and book were cancelled. However, as chequebooks are generated automatically, unless you are waiting for a new book, someone could have known how long the delivery would take.

So how can this loophole be closed?

Petty attitude

IT was disappointing but perhaps not surprising to read the comments of Alev Cazimoglu ("Rebel de Bois thwarted in Commons vote on Care Bill", Advertiser, March 19).

Enfield North MP Nick de Bois took the step of voting against his own party on plans to make it easier for the government to downgrade hospitals.

Yet instead of praising this stance councillor Cazimoglu, who chairs Enfield Council's health scrutiny panel, called his action "insincere". How petty.

Councillor Cazimoglu is an ardent supporter of Joan Ryan, who hopes to defeat Mr de Bois in next year's general election, which explains her comments.

Win a flight with... Monarch

WE'VE teamed up with airline Monarch to offer one lucky reader the chance to win a pair of flights on their new routes to Naples in Italy or Antalya in Turkey from London Luton Airport for this summer.

Monarch Airlines is a leading scheduled leisure airline operating from six bases in the UK – London Gatwick, Manchester, Birmingham, East Midlands, Leeds Bradford and London Luton, which is its headquarters.

Focused on service, value and safety, Monarch offers travellers tailor-made flights and holidays to 38 destinations in the Mediterranean, Canary Islands and winter ski destinations.

To be in with a chance of winning, simply answer this question, who is the monarch of England?

A. Elizabeth Windsor.

B. Anne Phillips.

C. Camilla Parker Bowles.

Send your answer, along with your name, address and a daytime phone number, to Monarch competition, North London & Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT.

Alternatively, email your answer, plus all of your contact details, to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk with "Monarch competition" as the subject line.

The closing date for entries is Friday, April 11.

Terms and conditions

1. The winner will be the first correct entry drawn after the closing date.

2. The winner must be aged 18 years or over.

3. The prize is non-transferrable and is to be used by the registered prize-winner.

4. The prize is offered strictly subject to availability and may not be available on all dates on all flights during peak periods such as Christmas, the New Year and school and bank holidays.

5. The prize is valid for travel between May 2 and October 31, 2014.

6. The prize is one pair of return flights with Monarch from London Luton to Naples or Antalya.

7. Airport taxes are included in the prize.

8. No cash alternative is available.

9. Prize-winners are responsible for paying for each piece of hold baggage taken.

10. The winner is responsible for all expenses and arrangements (such as but not limited to flight extras, in-flight meals, pre-allocated seats, accommodation, meals, spending money and transportation to and from the departing and destination airport) not specifically included in the prize.

11. Monarch accepts no liability for use of the prize or any loss or damage which may arise from the competition or use of the prize. All prize-winners and their companions fully indemnify Monarch Airlines Ltd for any and all losses, liability, action, claim, proceeding, judgment, penalty, fine, damages, fee, cost, charge or expense (including, without limitation, legal fees and expenses) brought, claimed or asserted against Monarch Airlines or for which Monarch Airlines may be liable as a result of this competition or of taking or using the prize.

12. Compensation under Regulation 261/2004, Montreal Convention and any other applicable law is strictly excluded irrespective of the cause.

Watchdog says hospital claims do not stack up

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE borough's health watchdog has called on NHS chiefs to be more transparent about performance at Chase Farm Hospital.

Following last week's meeting of the Barnet, Enfield and Haringey joint health scrutiny panel, Lorna Reith, chief executive of HealthWatch Enfield, said that claims made by managers of the trust administering Chase Farm and Barnet Hospital do not stack up.

At the meeting, Fiona Smith, chief operating officer at the trust, said that admissions, particularly of elderly patients, had gone up during the winter, which she said was partly responsible for causing delays at the emergency unit at Barnet Hospital.

But Ms Reith said: "They say admissions have gone up, but figures show that emergency admissions are going down. The picture clearly is more complicated."

A HealthWatch report published on March 18 shows that emergency admissions – when an A&E patient is admitted to a ward – gradually dropped from 486 in the week ending January 26 to 423 in the week ending February 23.

Despite the drop in admissions A&E performance at Barnet was poor. In the week ending February 2, the hospital treated 81.9 per cent of A&E patients in the target time of four hours, rising to 86.6 per cent in the week ending February 23. Performance fell well below the expected 95 per cent.

Meanwhile, HealthWatch figures show that cancellations of elective surgery at the trust have also gone up. During the period between the start of November and the end of February, there were 48 cancellations, compared to only seven last year.

North Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, reported six cancellations. The report said it was unclear whether the increase in cancelled operations was related to the closure of the A&E unit at Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, in December last year.

Ms Reith added: "We can't get the figures broken down by hospital, so we don't get a full picture of what is going on."

"There seems to be no spare capacity at Chase Farm, so either the modelling is incorrect or they have closed too many beds down. They should be more transparent so we know what we are dealing with."

The trust failed to respond to our queries by the time the Advertiser went to press.

Life sentence for vagrant who killed homeless man

By Koos Couvee
koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A HOMELESS man who beat a fellow vagrant to death in a savage attack was sent to jail for life on Monday.

Damin Walczyk, 30, of no fixed abode, was sentenced for the murder of 55-year-old Alfred Stemporowski by battering him to death on May 29 last year in a bin shed in Keats Close, Ponders End.

He was found guilty after a trial at the Old Bailey last month and on Monday was told he would spend a minimum of 18 years behind bars.

In the course of the trial the jury heard that the victim was lying asleep on a mattress in the shed he was living in when without warning Walczyk, who had been drinking heavily, grabbed Mr Stemporowski, lifting him off the floor before pummelling him with a flurry of blows to the ribs and face.

When two other Polish vagrants who also lived in the shed begged Walczyk to stop, he intimidated them. They asked him why he was doing it and he replied: "For the love of my country," which is a colloquial Polish saying that translates as doing something for no reason at all.

But at the Old Bailey on Monday Judge Wendy Joseph QC said it appeared that Walczyk had felt cheated by Mr Stemporowski over the sale of a quantity of scrap metal.

The witnesses were able to escape but when they tried to tell members of the public what had happened, the language barrier meant they were unable to make themselves understood.

Police were not called until the next day after the couple returned to the bin shed and were unable to rouse the 55-year-old.

A post-mortem revealed Mr Stemporowski suffered more than 60 injuries, including 32 fractures to his ribcage.

Judge Joseph said that alcohol had caused Walczyk to "lash out in a violent frenzy".

Sentencing, she said: "You attacked Mr Stemporowski in his sleep. He was in terrible pain and quite unable to defend himself.

"And when you were sobering up you showed no compassion or remorse about what you had done."

The judge described the victim as "a quiet, pleasant tempered man, who spent his days gathering scrap metal and was generous with his earnings", but whose life was "completely blighted by alcohol".

Life sentence: Damin Walczyk

Man jailed after fake gun threat

A MAN who pointed an imitation gun at a police officer's face has been jailed for four years.

Michael Murphy Martin, of Hollickwood Avenue, Finchley, was jailed at Wood Green Crown Court last month after pleading guilty to possession of an imitation firearm in a public place. The 27-year-old was arrested at 6pm on December 22 last year in Bowes Road, New Southgate.

Two policewomen from Enfield were on patrol when they were approached by a member of the public who told them that two men were assaulting a woman outside the nearby Our Lady of Lourdes Church.

One of the police officers went to the church and found Martin, his wife and another man.

When she asked if she could help, the policewoman saw Martin raise his right hand in which he was holding the weapon. Believing it to be real, she pulled Martin's wife away and pressed her emergency assistance button.

At this point the other police officer arrived and, unaware of the handgun, began speaking to the two men, who had been drinking.

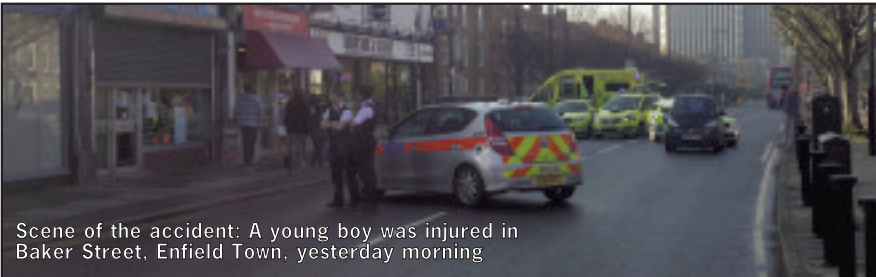

When she asked Martin if he was OK, he became aggressive and pointed the gun at her face.

Youngster injured

A BOY was taken to hospital after being involved in an accident with a car in Enfield Town yesterday morning.

The boy, 13, who was a pedestrian, was in collision with the car in Baker Street, at about 8.20am. He was taken to the Royal London Hospital in Whitechapel by ambulance with a leg injury.

The accident caused rush-hour traffic chaos as the scene was closed off until around 9am.

Good sports recognised at annual presentations

By Kim Inam

kim.inam@nlhnews.co.uk

ATHLETES, coaches and clubs have been recognised for their achievements in raising the bar of sporting activity in the borough.

Enfield Council held its annual Celebrating Sports Awards at Lea Valley High School, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, last week and 27 youngsters from the borough's schools won accolades, while eight were recognised for being young sports leaders.

Adults from the borough were also rewarded for their contributions, with England Women and Saracens rugby flanker Margaret Alphonsi being named adult sports performer of the year.

The 30-year-old from Edmonton credits the sport with keeping her on the straight and narrow.

"I needed a bit of discipline really so rugby was the way forward," she said. "It changed my attitude to school and life and allowed me to perform."

Margaret, nicknamed The Machine, also works for the Youth Sport Trust mentoring young athletes.

"A lot of athletes who have gone on to the Olympics have come from Enfield, to be recognised myself in the borough is quite special," she added.

The inclusive and active coach of the year award went to Cathy Underwood-Radan, founder of Yoga4mums, for her work in introducing yoga to different sectors of society. The 47-year-old, who also teaches children and adults with learning disabilities as well as those with mental health problems, told the Advertiser that she is developing a yoga curriculum.

Ace of clubs: Brimsdown Bowls Club

"It's something I would like to offer organisations and schools, showing how staff can utilise breathing exercises and positions to help calm down children when they are in a state of high emotion," she said. "Physical exercise is important, but what you get with yoga is self-awareness."

Trent Park Running Club was named volunteer of the year for helping at the mayor's annual charity fun run and Paul Bosley won the sports coach and instructor of the year award for his martial arts work.

Brimsdown Bowls Club, in Mayfield Road, picked up the club of the year award for its inclusive approach.

Formed in 1993, it has members aged between ten and 90, teaches the game to pupils in the borough's schools and also runs a bocchia team with West Lea Special School, in Haselbury Road, Edmonton.

Coach and secretary Anne Marie Kett said: "It's a sport you can play at any age."

"It requires skill and a lot of thought. It's not as simple as it looks. It's great to be recognised by Enfield. Last year we were nominated as one of the top clubs in the whole of London."

Joe Halle, of Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club, was named active sports performer of the year.

A marathon task for mum and daughter

ANY form of family rivalry will go completely out of the window when a mother and daughter team line up at the start of the London Marathon this month.

Julie and Katie Grogan, of Churchfield Path, Cheshunt, will be coaxing each other through the race on April 13 in a bid to raise funds for the Cardiomyopathy Association.

The heart condition, that affects one in 500 in the UK, has had a serious impact on the Grogan family.

In 2012, Katie lost her grandmother, Sheila, to the disease and in 2009 her father, and Julie's husband, Stephen, was also diagnosed with the condition.

The genetic nature of cardiomyopathy means that Katie and her older sister, Charlotte, have to visit the hospital for regular check-ups.

"Cardiomyopathy is a big thing in my family, so we really wanted to do something to help," says hairdresser Katie, 18.

Julie, 47, who is a professional aerobics instructor said: "The diagnosis has changed our lives so much. We have been given excellent support by the Cardiomyopathy Association throughout."

"I must say as well, doing a marathon has always been on my bucket list."

The pair started training just before Christmas and have been increasing their mileage ever since.

"We haven't been able to run with each other too much, due to Katie working full time," says Julie, "but we have supported each other throughout and it has definitely made us closer."

Marathon effort: Julie Grogan and her daughter Katie

With their longest run so far being only 19 miles, Julie admits the 26.2 mile route will be a step into the unknown.

"The final seven miles are going to be gruelling, but I'm hoping the crowd will pull me through," she added.

So who is going to win? "I think Katie might beat me, to be honest," said Julie. "After all she does have a couple of years on me!"

"No, but in all honesty, we have made a pact to go as far as we can with one another and hopefully we will be able to cross that line in a time near six hours."

Arthur's glasses are half full now

Stepping down: Arthur Baker is retiring after running his optician's for 37 years

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE oldest practising optometrist in the country is only partly retiring after decades of service to the community of Enfield.

Arthur Baker, 89, who has proudly run AA Baker Optometrists, in Bowes Road, Palmers Green, since 1977, has decided not to renew his eye testing licence, but says he will still be around to help out with spectacle repairs and other work at the practice, which he is leaving in the capable hands of his son David, 50.

The veteran optician, whose licence expired on Monday, will now get to spend more time with his wife Elsie, 84, whom he married in 1952.

"I think I've had a good run of it," he said. "But my wife has poor vision and she needs me to ferry her about on shopping trips. I am going to spend more time with her from now on."

"I am very happy that David is taking over the business. My other two sons weren't interested, they went on to do other things."

Born in Shoreditch in 1924, Mr Baker served in the RAF during World War II and was stationed in India after the war until he returned to London in 1947.

He studied optometry at the Northampton Polytechnic – nowadays City University – in central London during the 1950s and also qualified as a primary school teacher.

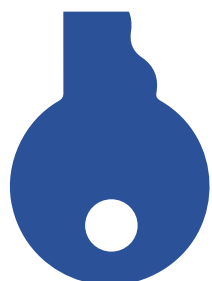

He started out as an optometrist at the house practice of one of his university professors in Kenmere Gardens, Palmers Green, in 1956, working in the evenings while being employed full time as a primary school teacher.

He retired from teaching in 1977 and opened his Bowes Road practice.

Asked why he has been working for such a long time and kept such good health, Mr Baker said: "Simply by working and being active in the community. I have always enjoyed my work very much."

Mr Baker still keeps his patient files on paper cards and his database has not been computerised.

Asked whether his profession has changed, he added: "It has become too commercial. We don't do free tests or two-for-ones and we work strictly on recommendation. We are a real family business and we treat all our patients like friends."

Magnificent seven bid farewell to fire brigade

Saying goodbye: Steve Pyle, Dick Barnes, station manager Jim Veares, Kevan Kent and Ian Rapley with fellow firefighters

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

SEVEN firefighters with more than 200 years experience between them were sent off to retirement in style this week as they hung up their helmets for good.

They were honoured with a final roll call at the parade square at Enfield fire station, in Carterhatch Lane, on Monday morning.

Station manager, Jim Veares, 54, who was among the seven, revealed to the Advertiser that he will miss working with his team after serving the fire brigade for 36 years.

"It is the teamwork that I think we will all miss most," the veteran firefighter said. "Working so closely with everybody, having their backs – we really are like a family here."

But although the past 30 years have been demanding physically, he admits he is in better shape than many other retirees.

"Well, you have to stay fit for the job," Jim modestly revealed. "We have to run with heavy equipment up flights of stairs, so good fitness comes with the territory."

Having saved lives throughout the borough for more than three decades, he says that a defining moment in his career was the role he played in dealing with the aftermath of the July 7 bombings in central London in 2005.

And although the seven men will not be given commemorative watches, the station manager revealed that their trophy cabinets are already weighed down with the medals they were all given after completing 20 years' service in the brigade.

Handing in their badges and boots alongside the station manager in the morning roll call were firefighters Kevan Kent, Dick Barnes, Steve Pyle and Ian Rapley.

The nightwatch roll call saw firefighters Paul Carey and John Cobbold slide down the poll for the final time.

THERE'S still time to grab tickets to the heart-warming family musical Honk! at the Intimate Theatre this week.

The Finchley and Friern Barnet Operatic Society will be performing the show, based on the fairytale The Ugly Duckling, at the theatre in Green Lanes, Palmers Green, until Saturday evening.

The production follows the journey of Ugly, who is shunned by others for his odd appearance. He is separated from the farm and pursued by a mischievous cat.

As he searches for his way home, he meets the beautiful swan Penny and the bullfrog, who teaches him about love and acceptance.

Chris Henry, publicity officer for the society, said: "Honk! is a great show with beautiful music and a fantastic story that takes you on a full gamut of emotions."

"It is extremely funny but also very touching and teaches a valuable lesson about tolerance and acceptance."

"What has been great about this show is that it has given our much younger members a chance to shine on

Heart-warming: Honk! is being presented by the Finchley and Friern Barnet Operatic Society at the Intimate Theatre in Palmers Green until Sunday

A Good Time to Buy?

With predictions being bandied about left, right and centre of another monumental year of house price growth, buyers across the board must be suffering from sweaty palms and sleepless nights. Whatever your reason for not hopping on board the property boat before now, 2014 will prove to be a testing time. Whether you decide this is the year to take the leap, or you choose to hold off and watch price indexes with baited breath, you'll need nerves of steel to follow through with your decision.

London calling

For anyone hoping to own their own little pile of bricks and mortar in the capital, there is likely to be an ongoing battle between government policy and runaway house prices. On the one hand, the race is on to agree on and speed through the construction of thousands of much-needed new homes. But in the meantime, rising prices mean first-time buyers continue to see the carrot dangled in front of them, only to have it cruelly pulled away again.

Over the odds

It remains a sellers' market in many boroughs, which means buyers will not only expect to pay more this year than last year for the same property, but they will also potentially have to enter into bidding wars in order to secure a deal. With first-time buyers able to compete with second or third-time buyers in terms of budget – due to years of hard saving – there is now a larger pot of potential buyers for each property that comes onto the market. And what second time buyers have in terms of property experience, first timers have in terms of being chain free, with a hearty cash deposit sitting in the bank.

Foreign investors

With everyone pinning their hopes on new developments, ministers are desperately trying to curb the common practise of advertising prime London new-builds abroad, ahead of their release in the capital. This process has done little to assuage the housing shortage – instead it has seen an increase in absentee homeowners, and an artificial hike in property prices, as foreign investors are prepared to pay over the odds for long-term additions to their portfolios.

Macan makes its mark

By Iain Dooley

PORSCHE'S first foray into the expanding and lucrative sports utility market with the Cayenne did two things – split opinion and considerably enhanced the company's bottom line.

Eager to repeat that success with a car in the burgeoning compact SUV market, Porsche has developed the Macan – and while its origins can be traced back to Audi's Q5, Porsche's engineers have transformed that and put the sport into sports utility.

Although clearly influenced by the look of the Cayenne, the Macan is more streamlined in profile and doesn't tower over regular cars like its conventional rivals. Crucially, this athletic stance does much to banish any notion that the Macan is all show and no go.

For now, it is six-cylinder turbo power across the range – two petrol and one diesel. Furthermore, Porsche's popular seven-speed dual clutch PDK gearbox is standard fit.

The Macan's cabin will be familiar to the Porsche faithful, thanks to the central fascia replete with all the important climate and performance-enhancing switchgear easy to hand. The main colour touchscreen provides access to a high quality audio and navigation experience.

With a steering wheel and tail lights influenced by Porsche's 918 hybrid supercar, you are left in no doubt as to the Macan's heritage. It has already ticked boxes regarding the accommodating cabin and family-friendly boot space.

In 400-horsepower Turbo petrol guise, the Macan behaves nothing like the traditional SUV stereotype. It is agile, rapid and engaging, with no hint of compromise when behind the wheel.

The experience is largely the same but a little less rapid in the regular 340 horsepower Macan S. For many, this will strike an attractive balance between ability and affordability.

And while the diesel variant is unlikely to appeal to those eager to be first in line for the fastest and shiniest, it delivers the biggest surprise for keen drivers.

The 254 horsepower is comparable to some rivals, but it's the way the whole package gels that's impressive. The diesel motor's flexible delivery combines with the polished PDK gearbox and composed ride to banish any perception that the oil-burning Macan is the black sheep of the range.

In fact, it is one of those rare things – an engaging, practical and stylish all-weather premium experience.

Factor in the plethora of driver-orientated options – adjustable dampers, air suspension, intelligent power distribution and traction electronics – and you've got the recipe for an accomplished all-rounder.

The Macan will also take tricky off-road terrain in its stride, proving that its athletic profile is no barrier to getting down and dirty if the going gets muddy.

Unlike with the Cayenne, Porsche enters an already developed market with the Macan.

There's no shortage of choice, but what is lacking is a credible sporting alternative to the conventional high-rise template. What gives the Macan the edge is its combination of ability, an engaging driving experience and brand image.

Facts at a glance

■ Model: Porsche Macan Diesel S, from £43,300 on the road.

■ Engine: Three-litre V6 diesel unit developing 254bhp.

■ Transmission: Seven-speed PDK dual clutch transmission as standard, driving all four wheels.

■ Performance: Maximum speed 143mph, 0-62mph 6.1 seconds.

■ Economy: 46.3mpg.

■ CO2 Rating: 159g/km.

ICT Technical Support

Vacant from 1st July 2014

(or as soon as possible after this subject to the successful candidate's availability)

Chase Side Primary is a very popular school with a warm, inclusive environment, and creative, enthusiastic children with a thirst for learning. We are developing our technology opportunities to support the delivery of the new computing curriculum as a Mac based school, with a Mac based ICT suite and class sets of iPads.

We are looking to appoint a highly effective and organised ICT Technical Support to join our friendly and dedicated staff team to support with ICT projects and to maintain our technology equipment. This is an exciting opportunity to support and work with children using ICT in a creative, innovative setting.

We are seeking someone who:-

- Can assist in the delivery of ICT in lessons and the new computing curriculum to children within all three phases (EYFS, KS1 and KS2).
- Is able to communicate well with staff, children and parents.
- Can provide a diagnostic 'trouble shooting' service.
- Can support the purchase, installation and networking of hardware and software.
- Has excellent organisation and time management skills.
- Can support the development and maintenance of our new school website.
- Runs ICT clubs for children
- Support teachers and other staff to improve their knowledge of technology and how it can enhance and extend learning and teaching

Does this sound like you? Are you excited by a challenge, always looking for the best solutions? Are you able to inspire others?

Come and join the dedicated and committed staff in our friendly and supportive school to make a real difference in the lives of our children! We offer a good induction for new staff within a forward-thinking and creative school community.

SHERWOOD: WE PAID FOR OUR POOR START

Six games left to get some pride back

TIM SHERWOOD admitted that Tottenham Hotspur's game plan had gone out of the window after they shipped two early goals in the 4-0 defeat at Liverpool on Sunday.

Younes Kaboul put through his own net after two minutes and then Luis Suarez struck midway through the first half to put the Reds on the way to a crushing win that sent them to the top of the Premier League.

Defeat, meanwhile, leaves Spurs sixth in the table, four points behind fifth-placed Everton, who have played a game fewer.

Manager Sherwood pulled no punches as he admitted his side had paid the price for their poor start to the game at Anfield.

He told Spurs' official website: "The game plan was to keep it tight for as long as we could and hopefully they would get a bit edgy – but with all the will in the world, the game plan goes out of the window when you concede so early.

"We started poorly, gifted them two goals and unfortunately there was no way back from that. We're bitterly disappointed.

"It was a poor start and the players don't need me to tell them that. We made individual errors and they were punished.

"We had a chat afterwards. It was difficult for everyone, no one likes losing. We've six games left to try to get some pride back."

Sherwood was also forced to defend himself after coming under fire from sections of the 3,000-strong visiting support after choosing to remain sat in the directors' box, rather than directing operations from the touchline.

He said: "They are entitled to have an opinion. I have sat up there the last few matches and got a better view of the game.

"It's a learning curve for me because when the team is not going so well, they want to see you.

"But they know me well enough to know I am not shirking my responsibilities. I am in it with the team. It's my responsibility as well as the guys on the pitch.

"At 2-0 and the game going away and then 3-0, I am going to learn more from my players from sitting up there and having a good look at it, rather than getting myself involved and maybe in trouble on the touchline."

Tottenham made a terrible start when Glen Johnson's low right-wing cross caused havoc in the box, with the ball going through Jan Vertonghen's legs and deflecting into the net off Kaboul from six yards as he went to clear.

The ever dangerous Suarez twice went close for Liverpool before Spurs suffered a blow when Vertonghen was forced off injured, to be replaced by Michael Dawson.

Liverpool doubled their lead almost immediately with Suarez pouncing as Kaboul dithered after receiving a misplaced pass from Dawson and driving forward before firing a low shot across Hugo Lloris and into the far corner of the net to take his season's tally to 30 goals.

Spurs hit back with Gylfi

Sigurdsson heading at Reds keeper Simon Mignolet, Nabil Bentaleb testing the Belgian stopper with a fierce low drive from 30 yards and Roberto Soldado forcing him to push away a curling drive five minutes before half-time.

Liverpool thought they had a third before the break, only for Lloris to somehow palm Suarez's header from Raheem Sterling's cross on to the bar.

But they did extend their lead ten minutes into the second period when Philippe Coutinho netted with a low drive from 25 yards.

After Lloris had made further impressive stops from Suarez and strike partner Daniel Sturridge, Jordan Henderson completed Spurs' misery 15 minutes from time with a free-kick that somehow crept past everyone in the box and straight into the back of the net after Suarez had stepped over the ball.

To compound Spurs' misery, Soldado was forced off with a hamstring injury in added time with the visitors having used all of their substitutes. He and Vertonghen will be assessed by the club's medical team this week.

Tottenham will be back in action on Monday evening when they play Sunderland in the Premier League at White Hart Lane (8pm).

Remy off the mark

ELLIS Remy opened his account for Haringey Borough as they left it late to beat London APSA in the Essex Senior League on Saturday.

The Montserrat international, who was one of a raft of players signed by Borough a fortnight ago, grabbed the second goal as Borough finally saw off their stubborn visitors 2-0.

Borough should have been out of sight by the time they opened the scoring in the 83rd minute through Darrel Cox. But profligacy in front of goal and some resolute defending meant that the scoreline remained goalless until then.

London APSA barely tested home keeper Austin Byfield, who was not called into action until midway through the second period when he finger-tipped a long-range effort on to the bar.

Borough had suffered an abandonment of their previous game on Thursday. The home game against Stansted was called off after 38 minutes with the score goalless when visiting striker Phil Siggins suffered a broken leg as he tried to prevent a clearance.
